This Week's Parashah

The Book of Exodus begins by recounting that the descendants of Jacob flourished and multiplied in Egypt "and the land was filled with them." Then, a new Pharaoh rises to power in Egypt, one who did not remember Joseph. Pharaoh perceives the Israelites as a threat. So, the Egyptians enslave the Israelites, making life bitter for them. Pharaoh instructs midwives to kill all male children born to Israelite women. When the midwives, fearing God, do not obey, Pharaoh orders all newborn boys drowned in the Nile River. One woman bears a son and is able to hide him for three months. When the infant can no longer be hidden, he is set afloat on the Nile River in a wicker basket. Miriam, the boy's sister, is stationed to watch what will become of him. When Pharaoh's daughter finds the infant, she adopts him. Miriam arranges for her mother to nurse the baby. When the boy is grown, he is brought to Pharaoh's daughter to live in the palace as her son. She names him Moses, meaning "drawn out" of the water. Moses witnesses an Egyptian taskmaster beating a Hebrew slave and Moses kills the Egyptian. Moses flees Egypt and goes to Midian. One day, God appears to Moses in a burning bush. God instructs Moses to lead the Israelites out of Egypt and into the land of Canaan. Moses, his wife Zipporah, and his sons journey to Egypt. Moses and Aaron go to Pharaoh demanding in the name of God that the Israelites be permitted to leave Egypt to worship God in the wilderness, but Pharaoh refuses to agree to their plea.

Today's Haftarah

Isaiah is the foremost name among the prophets. A member of the royal household in Jerusalem, he preached for some forty years in the latter part of the eighth century B.C.E., warning kings and people to trust God rather than the might of their armies. In this week's Haftarah, Isaiah points out that the thorough corruption among the upper classes of the Northern Kingdom resulted in the destruction of this portion of Israel at the hands of the Assyrians. This was divine punishment for the wanton ways of the Jewish aristocracy and priestly class. The prophet's words serve as a warning to the Southern Kingdom.
