This Week's Parashah

As the Book of Leviticus begins, the Israelites are slowly traveling through the desert toward the Promised Land. From the time that they received the Torah at Mt. Sinai, the Israelites offered sacrifices as a way of worshipping God. Vayikra describes these various sacrifices: The Olah (burnt offering) - signaled that one was in need of communicating with God. The sacrifice could be a sheep, a goat, a bull, a pigeon or a turtledove. The Mincha (meal offering) - consisted of unleavened flour or grain of the finest quality mixed with olive oil and frankincense. It served the same purpose as the Olah, but was brought by one who could not afford to bring an animal offering. The Zevach-Shelamim (sacrifice of well-being) - a sacrifice from the herd of one's flock. The Chatat (sin offering) and the Asham (guilt offering) - expiatory sacrifices intended to secure atonement and forgiveness from God. The Chatat was in some cases a young bull, and in others a sheep or goat. It had to be brought when a person had mistakenly committed a sin. If a person's transgression involved the misappropriation of property intended for the Sanctuary, then an Asham was required.

Today's Haftarah

This week's Haftarah deplores Israel's neglect of all worship. Isaiah addresses the Jews exiled to Babylon after the first destruction of the Temple in Jerusalem. The Jews have been punished for their failure to live up to God's expectations. Isaiah reminds the Jews that there is only one God in whom to believe. The idols worshiped by other nations are mere blocks of wood and it would be foolish to worship them, for they are of no use. The Torah portion describes the authentic worship of God by Israel in the earliest Biblical times at the sanctuary. This is in stark contrast to the falling away from God during the time of Isaiah as described in this week's Haftarah.
