This Week’s Parashah

After the Israelites settle the Land, they are to bring their first fruits to offer as a sacrifice. The offering is to be accompanied by a declaration that briefly reviews the origins and history of the Jewish people. Moses instructs the Israelites about tithing: A person’s tithe consists of one-tenth of the harvest. This tithe is divided and distributed among the Levites, the strangers, the orphaned, and the widowed. Upon crossing the Jordan, the people are to set up 12 stones on Mount Ebal. The stones are to be covered with plaster and inscribed with “every word of this Torah.” Ki Tavo concludes with a series of blessings and curses. The tribes are to be divided into two groups: Shimon, Levi, Judah, Issachar, Joseph, and Benjamin will stand on Mt. Gerizim as each blessing is recited by the Levites, while the Reuben, Gad, Asher, Zevulun, Dan, and Naph-tali tribes stand on Mt. Ebal. The curses stated in Deut. 27:16-26 are unique in that they address deeds that are difficult to uncover; they are often committed in secret. After each of these curses is recited, all the people respond with “Amen.” The word “Amen” is related to “emunah” (faith) and comes from the Hebrew root meaning “firm.” By saying “Amen,” the people indicate their assent to the curses for these sins, and in a sense, making an oath to avoid them.

Today’s Haftarah

Isaiah’s vision of Jerusalem provides encouragement to the Jewish people in exile. He speaks of a time when God’s light will shine on the holy city and the Jews will come streaming back to it. This will be a time of peace, says Isaiah: “No more shall the noise of violence be heard in your land, desolation and destruction within your borders.” The Haftarah is a counterweight to the bitter catalogue of threats and curses which are found at the end of the Torah portion. This is the sixth of the Haftarot of Consolation chanted between Tisha B’Av and Rosh Hashanah. Nearly seven weeks ago we mourned the destruction of Zion on Tisha B’Av. Isaiah’s vision of a restored land is a call for the people to arise from their sorrowful state.
